

The ReBin Foundation's donation policy

The ReBin Foundation for Sustainable Development is a non-profit, public-benefit foundation under Swiss law. It has signed a Headquarters Agreement with the Government of Benin. The ReBin Foundation finances the bulk of its projects through voluntary donations. We are extremely grateful to the private individuals and organisations whose contributions or subsidies help us meet our goals and implement waste recovery projects.

We check the origin of donations in excess of CHF 5000 with a first instalment or an unexpected payment, to make sure they are compatible with our values, mission and statutes. It goes without saying that any donations deriving from dubious ethical or moral practices that are counter to our values are automatically rejected by the Foundation Board. In case of doubt, we require donors to provide a statement of resources.

The Foundation's financial resources are used exclusively for implementing sustainable development projects that contribute to a more circular economy and for ensuring the proper functioning of the organisation. These principles are enshrined in our statutes.
